Program: Dental Public Health M.S. Program
Rating: High Quality

The Dental Public Health MS is a specialty area recognized by the American Dental Association. The Dental Public Health program at UI is a small but highly regarded program. The Dental Public Health program at UI is different from other dental specialty programs in that the graduates do not go into private practice but rather ~1/3 of the students go into the Oral Sciences PhD program, 1/3 into faculty positions and 1/3 into public health practice. The cohort size is very small. The program does have a training grant funded by NIH but otherwise there is no ongoing support for students. Completion rate is strong at ~85%.
