The Masters of Public Health (MPH) program is the primary professional practice degree in Public Health. The MPH program at UI has experienced a large growth in applications (26 in 1999 to 211 in 2009). MPH students are generally not supported and there are many part-time students. The completion rate is 94% over 6 years which is attributed to the large number of part-time student. Diversity is quite good- in spring ’09, 14.4% of MPH students were students of color. 90% of MPH graduates are successful in finding appropriate employment. Further growth is limited by lack of classroom and student gathering space. The program is looking at ways to expand the pipeline through combined degree programs and a possible 3+2 program with selected undergraduate majors.